Hunsur bandh withdrawn; Police cancel procession

Schools, colleges closed; Police take over town; Protest scene shifts to Mysuru

The 11-ft Panchaloha idol of Lord Hanuman that was meant to be taken in a procession is being shifted from Town Hall Grounds in Hunsur late last night.

Hunsur/ Mysuru, Dec. 4 (OSR)- An uneasy calm prevailed in Hunsur this morning after yesterday's showdown between the State Government and Hindu activists over the arrest of MP Pratap Simha as he tried to enter the communally sensitive town to participate in Hanuma Jayanti celebrations.

There is a heavy posse of Police, numbering over 2,500 guarding Hunsur. The Police have shifted the giant Hanuman idol that was meant for procession to a temple and have cancelled the procession.

Simha was taken into preventive custody and was released at T. Narasipur late yesterday. Over 6 persons were injured in clashes and stone pelting and more than 50 people were arrested yesterday.

Following Simha's release, the BJP Yuva Morcha that had called for Hunsur Bandh today withdrew the bandh call and the protest scene was shifted to Mysuru where BJP activists led by MP Shobha Karandlaje protested at Gandhi Square.

After Eid-Meelad celebrations on Saturday, the Police had restricted rallies in the name of Lord Hanuman. Mysuru district Police had thrown a security cover around Hunsur and had set up 20 check-posts on all the roads leading to Hunsur.

While buses and autos plied normally and shops remained open in Hunsur this morning, about 20 percent of the shops in the areas where the clashes took place yesterday remained closed. The district administration had declared a holiday as a precautionary measure following the bandh call. As such, all educational institutions remained closed today despite the withdrawal of bandh. Students and teachers could not reach schools as the bandh was withdrawn after 8 am today.

Hanuman statue shifted

In a late night operation yesterday, a team of officials, under tight Police security, shifted the idol of Lord Hanuman that was meant to be taken in a procession. The 11-ft Panchaloha idol was placed at the Town Hall Grounds by the devotees and had planned for a procession. The Police, however, had denied permission for the procession to pass on particular routes and this had enraged Hindu activists.

The shifting operation began at around 9.30 pm and the idol was taken back to Narasimhaswamy temple from where it was brought. The official team included Assistant Commissioner Nitish Kumar, Sub-Inspector Shanmugam, Tahsildar Mohan Kumar, Municipal Commissioner Shivappa Naika.

MP vents ire at Police, CM

Reacting on his arrest and subsequent release, MP Pratap Simha criticised cops for arresting him despite their failure in checking illegal cattle transportation to neighbouring Kerala, illegal sand mining and other activities. "I don't understand why they arrested me and prevented me from attending an event. They allowed Eid-Meelad celebrations," he said, speaking to reporters in Mysuru this morning.

"I don't believe in "Goonda politics culture" and Mysuru Superintendent of Police Ravi D. Channannavar is acting as per the directions of State Government, his political bosses. CM Siddharamaiah, KPCC Working President Dinesh Gundu Rao and his father R. Gundu Rao all have practiced Goonda culture," he alleged.

BJP targets CM for Hunsur unrest

Mysuru, Dec. 4 (RK&BCT)- Over 1,200 BJP workers and Hindu activists protested at Gandhi Square against Police "excesses" in Hunsur yesterday over Hanuma Jayanthi celebrations. Udupi-Chikkamagaluru MP Shobha Karandlaje led the protest and targeted the Congress Government in the State for arresting MP Pratap Simha who was on his way to take part in the celebrations. As the BJP leaders shouted slogans against Siddharamaiah government at the protest venue, another group nearby garlanded the flex banner of CM and protested.

BJP MP Shobha Karandlaje and other party leaders including M. Shivanna, Dr. B.H Manjunath, Kautilya R. Raghu, H.S. Nandeesh Preetham, B.P. Manjunath and others are seen protesting at Gandhi Square this morning.

The protesters condemned the State's move to prevent peaceful Hanuma Jayanthi celebrations. The agitating BJP workers said that the State was imposing restrictions on celebrating Hindu religious functions. The Congress government has hurt the sentiments of the Hindus by not allowing the celebrations of Hanuma Jayanti, they alleged. The protesters expressed their anguish by raising slogans against the CM.

Balancing diet versus soaring prices

The monetary value of food produced annually in the country is some hard-to-guess portion of the size of its economy, currently doing round at a bit more than two trillion dollars. The figures for the top four or five other economies of the world, including the United States of America, China and Japan are many times that of India. However, barring China, the manageable populations of those nations give them the much-sought advantage of good per capita availability of food unlike in India's case where that advantage is lost. Many disagree with the often-made official claim that India has been self-sufficient on the food front, forgetting conveniently the nearly 200 million Indians, being economically in dire straits, have no access to adequate food on a daily basis. The two facts that India's agriculture is the biggest single industry and its share in the country's total economy is less than 15 per cent don't match each other. Add to these self-contradicting features, is another fact of substantial and avoidable losses of food from the field to the consumer market, particularly more than 30 per cent loss of perishables during the stages of storage, transportation and marketing.

Consumer prices of perishables, both plant-derived and animal-based, are witnessing volatility like never before, sending even upper-middle-class families into a spin. Production of food grains is tending to get on razor's edge with the area for cultivation steadily shrinking and soil fertility getting reduced, particularly across the land's regions considered as grain-bowl of the country.

The practices being followed in India's food processing industry dominated by multinational companies and their franchises are largely drawn from technologies of the west. The money worth of the actual food in their products is just a fraction, the major part being accounted for their marketing costs, packaging and margins, making only the affluent sections of society their captive patrons, leaning aside the major sections struggling to get at their daily food. School-bound children are being salvaged partially given the mid-day meal programmes, such as in Karnataka. On top of this, subsidised breakfast and lunch has been introduced for the working class in the capital city and smaller cities although subsidies and freebies are not the best favoured solutions to ensure that all citizens can lay their hands on balanced diet, not deficient in essential nutrients.

Prima facie, the various measures being taken by both the union government and its counterparts in various states, including Karnataka, may assuage the hunger of the economically weaker sections of society. The official machinery needs to be more committed and show higher norms of empathy towards the hungry masses who are adrift in balancing their diet nutritionally against the soaring prices of all essentials.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

The smog that engulfed the National Capital Region (NCR), has dominated the public discourse. Principal among the causes for high pollution levels is the burning of paddy stubble in the neighbouring states of Haryana and Punjab. The explanation is pretty straightforward. The combined harvesters used to harvest paddy cannot cut the crop close enough to the ground, leaving a stubble for which the farmer has no use. Given the short duration available between harvesting summer paddy and sowing winter wheat, farmers find burning the stubble the simplest way to clear fields. The smoke from the burning stubble drifts southwards and accumulates in the low-lying NCR just as the monsoon winds abate. This pollution, together with the cracker-burning over Diwali, taken NCR's air quality to notoriously high levels of toxicity.

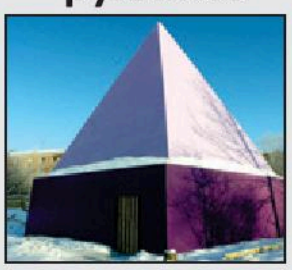
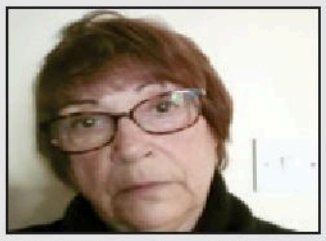
Russia's healing pyramids



Moscow: Ever heard of Russia's healing pyramids? They are the work of Dr. Alexander Golod, a Ukrainian scientist who claims that they have the power to prevent diseases and even control the weather.

Dr. Golod, a Moscow-based scientist and defence engineer, began building his mysterious pyramids in 1990. By 2010 that number had increased to over 50 pyramids worldwide, with the majority in Russia and the Ukraine. Each pyramid has an internal framework of PVC pipes covered with sheets of fibreglass to form smooth faces. They were designed to fit the Golden Section phi ratio of 1 to 1.618, to create beautiful, natural looking compositions. This proportion makes the structures steeper than the Egyptian pyramids, with a slope of about 70 degrees. The perimeter of its base, making Golod's pyramids look more like church steeples or obelisks. The most incredible thing about these structures is that they lack a single metal element. Dr. Golod claimed that any metal in the pyramid would decrease the magic immensely.

Homeless woman !



London: A 70-year-old widowed grandmother from Devon, England, was left homeless after thieves stole her 40-foot, £30,000 static caravan by lifting it from its base, putting it on a low loader trailer and just driving off with it. The victim, Sonia McColl, founder of the Park Home Owners Justice Campaign. She had been tirelessly campaigning to protect homeowner rights. McColl told reporters that she was in the process of moving from Dorset to Devon after suffering multiple death threats for her campaigning. She had recently bought a static caravan in Willand, near Cullompton, but never imagined it could get stolen. She now has nothing left but the curtains that she had intended to fit in her new home. The static caravan was unfortunately not insured, leaving McColl penniless. Devon and Cornwall Police have opened an investigation into this case and made an appeal to the public for any information they can provide.

Act against encroachments, haphazard parking in residential areas

Sir,

Many residents in various extensions brazenly encroach public space. It is normal that many convert open spaces in front of their homes as gardens, reducing space for road users.

In addition, parking vehicles in front of the shops and other establishments are always a haphazard. Vinaya Marga of Siddarthanagar has become notorious for rash and reckless riding. Most of the car parking space is invariably occupied by two-wheelers, denying four-wheelers space to park. Visits of Tiger Squad to seize vehicles parked illegally is of no use as it is not regular. Unless frequency of Tiger Squad is increased, the chaos will continue.

Visitors to the Vinayaka Temple on this road hardly care to park their vehicles in an orderly manner. Added to the existing problems, someone is building a fountain like structure opposite a departmental store which takes away available parking space in front of the Temple. It appears, authorities concerned are not bothered about this problem.

It is requested that all departments concerned must keep up their vigil to ensure free movement of traffic, proper parking in designated areas and immediately remove illegal structures/ encroachments.

CONGRESS PARTY ELECTION

Amid Shehzad Vs Shehzada debate,

Rahul Gandhi files nomination for top post

New Delhi, Dec.4- By end of today, Rahul Gandhi's elevation as the Congress' next President in place of his mother Sonia Gandhi is expected to be official. Today is the last day for filing nominations and the last chance for anyone in the party to challenge Gandhi to an election for the post. That is not expected to happen.

Rahul Gandhi

Rahul Gandhi, who has been the Congress' Vice-President for almost five years, filed the nomination papers at the party's 24 Akbar Road headquarters in New Delhi at 10.30 am, with the who's who of the party present. Also, the party's six Chief Ministers, among them Punjab's Amarinder Singh, earlier seen as having been opposed to Rahul Gandhi taking his mother's place to lead the party.

Mullappally Ramachandran, the Chairman of the Congress' Central Election Authority, said no one in the party has so far sought to contest against Rahul Gandhi since the process of nominations opened on Friday. If he remains the only candidate at the end of Monday, he will be announced Congress Chief.

Sonia Gandhi has been the party's longest serving President, having led the party for 19 years since 1998.

The handover, for years expected to be a smooth transition in a party were the Nehru-Gandhi family has rarely been challenged for leadership, became controversial after a Congress leader from Maharashtra said the internal election to elect the party Chief was "rigged."

Shehzad Poonawalla indicated he would have liked to contest the election, alleging that it is a sham since Rahul Gandhi enjoys an "unfair advantage."

He also wrote to Rahul Gandhi demanding that he resign as Party Vice-President, enter a televised debate and "be judged on merit" rather than on his surname. Poonawalla, 30, alleged yesterday that he has an audio recording on a phone call where senior Congress leader Manish Tiwari advised him to roll-back his rebellion for the sake of his political career.

How Railways can help ease traffic problem in CBD

By R. Chandra Prakash,
Mysore Grahakara Parishat

City Railway Station was built nearly a century ago when Mysore was way different from what it is today. City's demography and geographical boundaries were limited and the concept of distances was restricted. The number of trains too was highly limited so also passengers. The concept of Central Business District (CBD) then was limited to Makkaji Chowk. Since mobility was either by walk or by Tongas, roads were not congested.

However, today the Railways run an average of 30 pairs of trains per day and on an average, 60,000 passengers converge daily at the railway station and a majority of them use the traditional 'front' entrance (Jagjivan Ram Circle side). Reason being the availability of transport and parking facility on this side. This is also the reason for heavy traffic on Irwin Road and surrounding areas like Jhansirani Lakshmi Bai Road, Sayyaji Rao Road, Sheshadri Iyer Road and Dhanvanthri Road.

With the completion of track doubling and electrification, more trains will operate between Bengaluru and Mysuru for the simple reason that rail transport is comfortable, safer and cheaper. The consequences of these developments on traffic conditions in the CBD will be diabolic. There is neither a sign of our planners taking note of this fundamental change that will happen soon nor there are any steps in the pipeline to tackle this. If this is left like this, CBD is going to be in bigger mess than it is today.

However, if railways adopt a pro-active attitude and join hands with city authorities there can be substantial relief in the traffic problem. An attempt is being made here to show how railways can substantially reduce traffic congestion by adopting some modifications in its services:

Railway Station related

• Railways should make use of both the sides of the station – Jagjivan Ram Circle side and CFTRI side - so that passenger traffic is distributed.

• All incoming trains should disembark passengers only on CFTRI side - platform 6 or 5. And all outgoing trains should start only from old face of the station - platform 1 or 2. This will reduce the passenger load by 50 percent.

•Parking facilities should be substantially increased on the CFTRI side.

• Place should also be made available for city buses to pick up passengers from CFTRI side.

• The vast vacant space on Railway Sports Ground needs to be made use of. There seems to be no tangible sports activities taking place here except the ritualistic Annual Railway Sports.

• City buses can take the road by the side of Vani Vilas Water works to pass through railway under-bridge for onward journey towards eastern side, thereby reducing the load on Irwin Road and Jhansirani Lakshmi Bai Road.

• As the city is densely populated in areas like V.V. Puram, Yadavagiri, Gokulam, Brindavan, Jayalakshmipuram, this arrangement provides good connectivity to places like Manasagangothri, Kuvempunagar, without clogging the JLB Road. This will also mean substantial reduction of traffic on the eastern side of the railway station.

Railway Service operation related

• Railways should consider brief stop at Naganahalli station so that passengers heading towards Ring Road can disembark there. Bus services should be made available at Naganahalli station.

• Railways should also consider extending services till Railway workshop. This would facilitate passengers to disembark at Chamarajpet station and at Railway Workshop station to reach their destinations in southern parts of the city.

• Trains coming from Hassan Arasikere side should stop at Metagalli where a new terminal is being planned. This will help passengers heading towards western part of the city to disembark.

• Railways should introduce local trains between Naganahalli, City Station, Chamarajapuram, Ashokapuram, and Kadakola. Similarly locals can run between KRS, Belagola Metagalli, and City Station.

It is high time that the local administration, people's representatives starting from Corporators, MLAs, MLCs, MPs and the leaders in the 'outer circle of power ring' take this cause and save the city from getting totally chaotic. One has to remember the idiom "A stitch in time saves nine".

Mysuru, Dec.4- The city of palaces and museums has one more attraction for visitors with the inauguration of 'Kalashree' a museum of beautiful artwork, sculptures and the magnificent recreation of Taj Mahal in seashells and conchs.

Radha Mallappa, a resident of Hanumanthanagar, has been working on products of the sea like seashells and conchs since more than two decades and designed different items. Beginning from the smallest flower to the giant sized Taj Mahal, Shiva temple, church, each piece is unique and eye-catching.

Small Industries and Sugar Minister Dr. Geetha Mahadevaprasad inaugurated the museum, located on Chamundi Hill Road in J.C. Layout where the Sand Museum is also there, here yesterday.

Speaking on the occasion, she said that the creations of Radha Mallappa are outstanding. She should be lauded for her effort. "If she also makes flowerpots using seashells and conchs, it will be a good idea as it can be presented as gifts," she said.

The 11ft X 18ft tall Ganesha idol that she created using seashells and conchs bagged the Guinness World Record last year. The size of Taj Mahal is 12ft X 13ft, while Shiva's temple is also 12ft X 13ft and the church is 13ftX15ft.

Each artefact displayed is better than the other one. There are 160 models on display and Radha Mallappa, 54, has spent nearly Rs. four crore to make these lovely pieces using seashells and conchs. She said that each seashell costs Rs.8.

The other attractions, lovebirds made out of paddy grains, family of crows made out of hair, dinosaurs blooming out of a nib all displays the extraordinary talent of Radha Mallappa.

"I am very keen to create all the seven wonders of the world using seashells. But for that I do not have sufficient space," she said.

Senior artists S.M. Jambukeshwara and L. Shivalingappa, littérateur S. Ramprasad, Akhila Karnataka Sharana Sahitya Parishat Mysuru Unit President G.R. Parameshwarappa and others were present.

Entry fee: The entry fee to the museum is Rs.50 for adults and Rs.25 for children. It is open from 9 am to 6 pm.

Carol singing competition heralds arrival of Christmas in city

Bishop calls to spread message of love, brotherhood and peace

Mysuru, Dec.4 (KS)- With hotels, restaurants in city preparing for the best Christmas cakes, Christmas season has already set in. Adding to festive spirit, the Catholic Association of Mysore had organised a carol singing competition at St. Philomena's High School premises in city yesterday.

The competition was inaugurated by Bishop of Mysuru Rt. Rev. Fr. K.A. William in the presence of Primary and Secondary Education Minister Tanveer Sait and other dignitaries.

Various teams comprising students of high schools, colleges, religious organisations, choirs, professional singers and Churches from across the city and district participated in the Carol Singing Competition as singers put up a bright show at the event that commenced around 9.30 am. Some dressed in colourful costumes brought alive the birth scene of Jesus Christ. Carols including 'Silent Night', 'Joy to the World', 'O come all ye faithful' were sung at the contest.

Speaking on the occasion, Bishop William said that carol singing was an activity that helped bring down barriers between people and added that human values were important and it seems that people have lost them.

Stating that the hearts had become like rock, the Bishop said that the people do not have the heart to listen to others which has to be overcome and added that competitions like carol singing brings everyone together.

He said that Christmas celebration was not restricted to one community, as all the people celebrate it and added that though many think that Christianity is a glorious religion, it is suffering right from the beginning.

Bishop William called upon the people to spread the message of love and peace this Christmas.

Minister assures grants for St. Philomena's Church: Minister Tanveer Sait, speaking on the occasion, assured to get additional funds for the renovation of the iconic Church of the city and added that the State Government has released a total of Rs. 5.5 crore for renovation of Churches in city.

Recalling his school days, Sait said that he had participated in many carol singing competitions and added that he had many friends irrespective of caste and religion as the people were blind to caste and religion while making friends.

Stating that the Bible teach us to love our neighbours as we love ourselves, Sait called upon everyone to spread the message of love and unity and also work hard to remove the hurdles that is affecting human relationships.

He called upon the students and the community people to make use of various schemes of the Minority Department.

A visit to Dachau Concentration Camp

Welcome to the Dachau Concentration Camp Memorial Site.

Today's memorial is a commemorative site to remember the people who suffered in the Dachau Concentration Camp and the 41,500 prisoners who died there. It has the character of a cemetery, a place of sorrow and remembrance. Please support us in our efforts to protect the site by observing a few rules of conduct." — A display board of request for the visitors.

It happened, therefore it can happen again; this is core of what we have to say."

"...But the seeds of anti-Semitism, racism, disregard of human dignity and democracy had been sown during the preceding period and gained ground after 1933 (when Hitler became Chancellor) with alarming speed.

Each of us today is shaping the background history of tomorrow."

— Chaim Schatzker

From the display boards in the Holocaust Museum.

Reading these texts, I wondered if what is happening in India today too has a background history created by long years of Congress Government.

The present government should learn from the mistakes of the preceding period of rule where policy compromises and appeasements of chosen people are made. Where non-consideration of merit, in appointments, specially in departments responsible for planning and implementation of schemes and projects, became a State policy. Another blunder was in general countenance to corruption calling it "a universal phenomenon." Ignoring the religious sentiments of the majority people, who were for 600 years ruled by invaders of different religions who desecrated the temples and despised their culture is another reason. These actions of the preceding rulers are now visiting the present NDA rulers.

Some symptoms of these flaws of the preceding governments are now seen, in the present government's period with the presence of right extremists, just as in US, under Donald J. Trump, where White Supremacists are raising their ugly heads more blatantly. Let it be.

The world had heard much about the Hitler's Hades of a place called Concentration Camps in Munich and Poland, gas-chambers for mass extermination of minority Jews, Sinti and Roma, with more than 3,000 camps for forced labourers in Berlin alone.

We were told that the most notorious Concentration Camp of Hitler was at Dachau near Munich. The others were in Poland. When Nazi Germany annexed part of Poland (the other half went to Russia under an agreement) there came up Auschwitz concentration camps I, II and III — prison, extermination camp and labour respectively.

I was keen on a visit to Dachau about 16 km (10 miles) from Munich in the State of Bavaria, south of Germany. So we took a train and headed to Dachau. As could be expected, there was a professional guide — a human tape recorder.

Originally there was an ammunition manufacturing factory here which was abandoned. Later it was turned into a prison camp for political prisoners when Hitler came to power in 1933 and with the ascendance of Nazi Germany, it became a Concentration Camp spread over hundreds of acres.

There were nearly 100 barracks, sub-camps or prisons where prisoners who included Jews, criminal offenders, Roma (Gypsies) homosexuals, trade union workers and in short all those opposed to Nazi Germany. At present only a few barracks and other facilities and buildings are preserved. The rest of hundreds of barracks were demolished but we can see the vestiges of those buildings neatly marked on the ground. Over 10,000 Jews were interned here along with other numbering over 34,000. According to our guide, there were over 32,000 documented deaths in this camp and there might be thousands undocumented.

The camps were liberated by the US forces on 1st of May 1945, after Germany was defeated in the World War II in April that year. We were told that there were 30,000 prisoners at the time of liberation and about 10,000 men were sick and disabled. However, on April 26, 1945, there were 67,665 registered prisoners.

As you saunter around the sombre area you get an eerie, melancholic feeling and for us it was further enhanced by the wet, smoggy climate. The flow of tourists was well regulated to avoid crowding. However, after seeing the place so vast that you can see as far as your eyes can reach, I thought even thousands could be allowed in at one go and yet the camp area will not be crowded.

Apart from the barracks with rooms for one, two or three prisoners with a barred aperture for air and natural light, there were supporting buildings like for kitchen, laundry, toilet, showers and workshops. There were gas or electric crematorium also. There was one room where we saw aperture in the ceilings for gas to be released for killing those who were too sick or weak to work — gas chamber. The guide, very vocal and assertive, said the prisoners would be misled to make them enter the gas chamber saying they were entering the chamber for shower. I wondered where was the need for such subterfuge. After all they are prisoners, they could be forced in to the gas chamber. Be that as it may, for extermination there were also the firing ranges and gallows, in the crematoria area, as killing sites for prisoners.

We were told that in Dachau, as in other German camps, German Nazi physicians performed medical experiments, using the prisoners as guinea pigs, on malaria, tuberculosis etc., and experiment new medicine on the prisoners. There was one tablet on the wall in a small hall (see pic.) that commemorated four women who were killed here for serving the Resistance in France against Nazi Germany. The guide and also my friend Roland were describing one of them, Miss Noorunisa Inayat Khan as the Indian Princess and it interested us naturally. They were killed here on 12th September 1944. Unlucky I thought. If only the execution was delayed by just 8 months, well they would have survived, I thought. The war ended on 1st April 1945. I was surprised to find fresh flowers kept here that I did not find anywhere in the camp.

Some pictures published here will speak the truth about Dachau.

Later that evening we went by train to our friend Roland's house in a village about 25 km from Munich surrounded by agricultural farms. As we alighted from the train and got into his car, we wanted to buy some flowers. Yes, no problem. Roland stopped the BMW at a spot by the roadside, next to a farm. There were some vegetables dumped on the ground and some on wooden racks (see pic. on page 12) and there was a flower garden. Our ladies cut some gladiolus etc. How to make the payment and to whom? No problem. It is a matter of absolute trust. There was a price list and a box for the coins or notes. (see. pics on page 12).

We had sumptuous heavy dinner over mugs of beer and left for the last train that would take us back to Munich.

The following day we returned to our heaven — Mysuru.

Hunsur Hanuma Jayanti standoff

BJP MPs to move privilege motion in Parliament

Mysuru, Dec.4 (RK&VNS)- "BJP MPs will move a privilege motion against the State Government led by Chief Minister Siddharamaiah during the Winter Session of Parliament starting from Dec.15, for stopping the local MP from attending the Hanuma Jayanti function and taking him to custody in Hunsur," said Union Parliamentary Affairs Minister Ananth Kumar here this morning. Addressing press persons at Government Guest House, he said that the State Government was following 'Tughlaq Culture' by hurting the religious sentiments of Hindus to please one particular community.

While permission was given to take out processions during Tipu Jayanti and Eid Meelad, the same was denied for Hanuma Jayanti, he added.

Ananth Kumar also said that CM's 'dictatorship' was clearly evident with MP Pratap Simha not being allowed to take part in the procession and being kept in Police custody for nine-long hours during which he was taken around H.D. Kote, Najangud and T. Narasipur, before being released.

The Union Minister said that despite informing the SP, IGP and Home Secretary about Pratap Simha's participation in the procession, the Police, instead of providing him security, took him to custody thus denying his right to participate in a religious event.

"This is not the first time that the Hanuma Jayanti procession is being carried out from Ranganatha Layout in Hunsur. The Police should have provided adequate security to continue the procession and celebrate the festival. Instead, they have used their lathis to disrupt peace to instigate communal conflicts," said Ananth Kumar.

The senior BJP leader also took a dig at the State Government for failing to solve the alleged murder cases of 19 Hindu leaders including Raju in Mysuru and Mogali Ganesh in Husur. "The killing of Hindu leaders proves the presence of terror outfits in the State," said Ananth Kumar.

Later, a few auto rickshaw drivers headed by former Minister S.A. Ramdas, submitted a memorandum to Minister Ananth Kumar requesting the Union Government to remove the proposed compulsory 10th standard pass clause for those applying for Driving License.

MP Pratap Simha, former MLCs C. Ramesh and Prof. K.S. Mallikarjunappa were present.

Hunsur bandh withdrawn

Organisers failed to stick to schedule, says DC

Meanwhile, Deputy Commissioner D. Randeep who is also the District Magistrate, has said that failure to stick to the scheduled time of procession and scheduled route by Hanuma Jayanti organisers caused tension in Hunsur.

He said that the procession was scheduled to begin at 10 am and did not commence even after noon. The crowd had assembled at Manjunatha Swamy Temple and intelligence reports had said that the Committee might deviate from the planned route.

"Fearing untoward incidents, we tried to disperse the mob and the Police had to resort to a mild lathi-charge," the DC said.

"In the past, we had held several rounds of discussions with Hanuma Jayanti Committee and Eid Meelad Committee and had decided on separate routes for Hanuma Jayanti and Eid Meelad. However, members of Hanuma Committee had appealed for modifications a few days ago and we had told them that the route cannot be changed at the last minute and asked them to appeal to the Home Secretary." Randeep said. The Committee appealed to the Home Secretary who upheld the administration's decision, he added.

"We demand the immediate release of over 50 Hindu activists who have been arrested by the Hunsur Police. Siddharamaiah and his Congress party is anti-Hindu. While the Government sanctioned permission to Eid Meelad procession and spent public money to celebrate Tipu Jayanti, it is not giving permission to peaceful Hanuma Jayanti," MP Shobha Karandlaje said.

"Congress Government is consistently pursuing anti-Hindu policies. The Government is trying to appease minorities while it has no value for emotions of the majority community," she added.

City BJP President Dr. B.H. Manjunath, District President M. Shivanna, leader H.V. Rajeev, former Minister S.A. Ramdas, Slum Morcha General Secretary Kautilya R. Raghu, Corporators Snake Shyam, H.S. Nandeesh Preetham, B.P. Manjunath, former MLA Marutirao Pawar and former MUDA Chairman L. Nagendra and others were present.

Over 50 Policemen, Commando Force, and CAR platoon were deployed under the leadership of ACP B.S. Rajashekar, Inspectors C.P. Santhosh, H.R. Vivekananda, Jayarathna and Shekhar were present.

Vaastu-Feng Shui & Bio-energetics

By S.B.S.Surendran
Accredited Master Feng Shui Consultant

Radiating Energy

The science of Feng Shui and Vaastu takes into account the energies radiating from the four compass directions — North, East, South and West and it explains in a simple and effective way the selection of site, construction and design of a residence, condominiums, business premises and placement of rooms, décor in the building.

The quality of soil and its implications on the energy and the structural strength of the building is very important aspect of Vaastu and Feng Shui analysis. Testing the soil prior to commencement of construction provides information on the soil strata, seasonal variations, water table, composition of the soil, rocky base and other vital information.

Ensuring that the construction site is free of landslides due to unstable or mining is crucial as the stability of the structure depends upon the strength of the soil which is referred to as "bearing capacity." Both in Vaastu and Feng Shui, a cracked, sunk or displaced building is considered bad and unsafe too. The Level of the property decides the type of energy flow into it. If the property is sunken, the energy is depleted and if it is on or above the normal ground level, it is enhanced, hence choosing the right level and setback ensures good flow of energy.

Directions have great significance when it comes to Feng Shui design and layout. This, in turn helps in deciding the layout, room positioning and décor including placement of fixtures, furnishings, furniture and adapting the right colours pertain to the specific sectors. The Feng Shui compass itself is a unique, accurate and a valuable tool which reveals important aspects of the analysis of a specific place. The compass directions are classified further on the basis of the Chinese zodiac sign and the twelve animals are distributed around the dial such that each of them occupies a specific sector, element and aspiration.

While designing building, one of the most important principle in Feng Shui is to have at least one solid wall in a room as this is said to signify the abode where the positive spirit of the room stays and accumulates and is the foundation to the type of energy existing. Interaction of the one solid wall which can be a feature wall with the rest of the home is vital in enhancing the mood of the home.

Main door is the threshold between internal (Yin energy) and external (Yang energy), hence it acts as the 'Mouth' where the Chi (energy) enters the property. A good main door ensures that the entire building receives a healthy amount of energy flow and prosperity.

• Plan a home that's square or rectangular. Odd-shaped or angular buildings have Feng Shui challenges that are difficult to undo.

• Make the building generally symmetrical in shape, and avoid angular protrusions.

Troubleshooting the afflictions in the property for external disturbances like electric pylon, trees, designing of garden, placement of plants, water features, ill-effect of neighbourhood buildings can ensure that the property is charged with good energy flow, vibrant and in harmony with the occupants.

With Ramya Canteen, food politics picks up pace in Mandya

Mandya, Dec. 4 (VNS)- With Assembly Polls is just about 4-5 months away, political activities in Mandya has already started to gain momentum with supporters of various political leaders opening canteens and serving food in a subsidised rates.

After the successful launch of 'Indira Canteen' in Bengaluru by the Congress State Government, it was the turn of JD(S), which opened 'Appaji Canteen' naming it after former Prime Minister H.D. Deve Gowda. Now, with rumours of actress and former MP Ramya wanting to contest in the ensuing Assembly Polls from Mandya, a new canteen - 'Kumari Ramya Canteen' has come into being in the Sugar Town.

Raghu, the canteen owner, said it was purely a business tactic to bring customers to his canteen and it had nothing to do with the politics.

Earlier, he owned a road side eatery but with District Administration evicting roadside shops, Raghu started a small canteen but failed to attract customers.

He later decided to reopen the canteen naming it after Ramya and also managed to get District Congress President Athmananda to inaugurate the same. This gained a lot of attention and the business picked up quite well.

The canteen sells many dishes like masala dosa, masala vada, palak dosa, rice bath, ragi dosa, rava idli, set dosa and puliyogare at Rs. 10.

Ramya has been trying her best to get connected to the party workers and people in Mandya. In fact, she had also rented a house in the town sometime back but with severe internal dissidence, she had to move out.

People associated with Congress believe it could be new move by the former MP who is trying to make her foothold in Mandya. The ensuing election will be interesting as JD(S) and Congress will fight for dominance over the district.

In the previous elections - JD(S) won from Nagamangala, Srirangapatana, K.R. Pet and Maddur constituencies while the Congress won by two seats – Mandya and Malavalli with Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha President K.S. Puttannaiah winning from Melukote Assembly constituency.

However, the JD(S) suffered a jolt with two of its MLAs – Cheluvarayaswamy (Nagamangala) and Ramesh Babu Bandisiddegowda (Srirangapatna) turning rebel and supporting the Congress party. In fact, C.S. Puttaraju, who represents the Mandya Parliamentary constituency, also belongs to JD(S).

Unfortunately, the BJP, which is trying its best to come back to power in the State, has no foothold in Mandya.

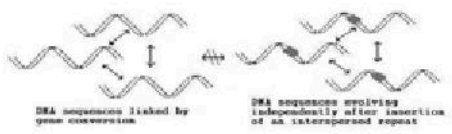
WORD OF THE DAY

Intersperse

Meaning: To place something at intervals in or among.



Origin: Intersperse derives from Latin interspersus, formed by combining the familiar prefix inter- ("between or among") with sparsus, the past participle of spargere, meaning "to scatter." In sparsus one finds an ancestor to our adjective sparse, as well as a relative of spark. (The relationship of spark to a word that describes something being scattered about makes sense when you think of sparks bursting or scattering off a flame.) Intersperse is often followed by the preposition with, as in "a straggling street of comfortable white and red houses, interspersed with abundant shady trees" (from H. G. Wells' 1898 novel, The War of the Worlds).

Example: The author has interspersed the guidebook with illustrations of the different birds we might encounter on the safari tour. "Interspersed throughout the beds of deliberately overgrown azaleas, roses, and hydrangeas is the world's largest private collection of sculptures.... —Harper's, 18 Apr. 2017.

THE ODD WORD

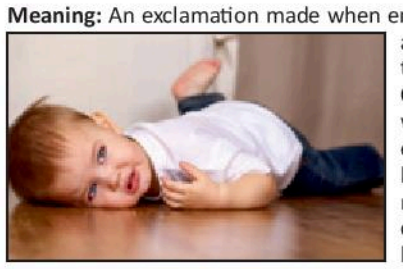
Public slaughterhouse

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Ups-a-daisy

Meaning: An exclamation made when encouraging a child to get up after a fall or when lifting a child into the air.



Origin: It is difficult to choose which of the numerous variants of the expression to use as the heading of this piece. As with many words that are said to small children, it is more often a spoken term than one that appears in print and this has led to much inconsistency about how it is spelled. In fact, there is not a single term that appears in so many different spellings; for example:

Upsidaisy... Upsa daesy... Upsy-daisy... Oops-a-daisy... Oopsy-daisy... Hoops-a-daisy...

The form in which it is now most commonly spoken and spelled is 'oops-a-daisy.' The first known printed record of any form of the term is in Clough Robinson's The dialect of Leeds and its neighbourhood, 1862:

"Upsa daesy! a common ejaculation when a child, in play, is assisted in a spring-leap from the ground."
